President Wilson Praises Deceased Railroad Executive.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—In response to a request President Wilson today sent this telegram to a St. Paul editor:

"Along with the great majority of my fellow countrymen, I recognize in the death of James J. Hill the loss of a man who has been extraordinarily useful in the economic development of the country. He belonged to a generation of builders to whom the country owes a real debt of gratitude and in that generation stood among the most foremost figures."

HUBBY STRUCK HER BECAUSE SHE SNORED, WIFE ASSERTS

Mrs. Grace Mason Wants Jury to Decide Divorce Suit; Indignities Averred.

Charging that her husband objected to her snoring and struck her violently in the side while she was in a delicate condition, Mrs. Grace H. Mason of Dunbar township, has filed suit for divorce from her husband, Jesse Mason of Connellsville. In her bill of particulars filed yesterday Mrs. Mason joins with her husband's recent petition to have the case tried by a jury.

Mrs. Mason has also secured a rule on her husband to show cause why he should not pay her $15 a week alimony while the divorce case is pending and counsel fees.

She alleges that six weeks after their marriage January 18, 1913, her husband began to assume an indifferent attitude and that he neglected to show her proper respect, devotion and affection, telling her that he no longer loved her and that he enjoyed the company and companionship of other women. Her husband taunted her, Mrs. Mason asserts, by showing her letters from other women, reading portions of them, some of which were "teeming with affection and expressions of love." The wife also alleges that her husband told her before their child was born that if it was a girl he would drown it, saying that he would have as much right to do so as if it were a kitten. When the child was born, the libellant avers, Mason was away on a 10-day pleasure trip.

The announcement disclosed that the half dollar has fallen practically into disuse. The new design was selected with the hope of restoring it to more general circulation it was indicated.

Under the new coinage each piece will be of different design.

JOHN S. MOSBY, A REBEL RAIDER, IS DEAD AT 82

Daring Confederate Cavalry Leader Had a Brilliant Career.

BECAME A FRIEND OF GRANT

Stamped State of Virginia When the Union General Ran for President; Capture of Union General Surrounded by 17,000 Men Most Daring Feat.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Colonel John S. Mosby, the most famous Confederate raider of the Civil War, died here today after a long illness. He was a native of Virginia and was 82 years old.

Colonel Mosby died about 50 years ago when at the head of a band of a few hundred Confederate raiders he rode up and down the Shenandoah Valley, capturing outposts, destroying supply trains, and cutting off means of communication. It has been estimated that he often neutralized the force of over 15,000 Federals in the Valley.

Born in Powhatan county, Va., December 6, 1833, and graduated from the University of Virginia in 1852, he was practicing law in Bristol, Va., when the war broke out and he began his career in the Confederate army. He proved his daring with such effect that he became a scout for General J. E. B. Stuart and led the celebrated raid around McClellan's army on the Chickahominy. In Richmond a year later he recruited an independent cavalry troop which became famous as Mosby's Partisan Rangers. They became night riders and the terror of the Federal troops.

Mosby's most brilliant exploit was the capture of General Stoughton. On a March night in 1863 he, with 30 followers, rode through the Federal army to Fairfax Court House only 16 miles from Washington, where General Stoughton was asleep. Although surrounded by an army said to have been 17,000 strong the raiders calmly kidnapped the general, his staff and many sentries, and turned them over to the Confederate authorities at Culpeper without having lost a man.

General Grant once later saved Mosby from hanging, and two foes of the battlefield became staunch friends. Mosby stamped the state of Virginia for Grant during his presidential campaign, and was rewarded with an appointment as consul at Hong Kong, a post which he held for seven years. From 1894 to 1910 he was an attorney in the Department of Justice. The closing years of his life were spent in lecturing and authorship. His home lay across the Potomac, at Warrenton, Va., but he was often seen in Washington, his white hair and strong Roman features, making him a picturesque figure on the streets or lecture platform.

"My military creed," he once declared, "is this: It is better to make a good run than a bad stand."

31 VOLUNTEER FIREMEN ARE INSURED; RELIEF FUND USED

New Haven Hose Company Approves Plan to Use Money For Their Protection.

Acting upon the recommendation of the New Haven Hose Company, council has decided to take out compensation insurance for 31 members of the volunteer fire department, paying the annual premium of $431 out of the Firemen's Relief Fund. "This has been under consideration for some time. The firemen approved the plan and council decided to take out the insurance with Neville & Wurtz.

The recommendation to council asked that four members of the paid fire department who are also enrolled in the volunteer company be included, but inasmuch as all of the paid firemen are insured in the policy covering all city employees, these were taken off the list. The matter caused some little discussion as to when a fireman is on duty. Solicitor Higbee inclines to the belief that perhaps a paid fireman who happens to go to a fire during his time not on duty might not be entitled to compensation in case of injury. The councilmen held that a fireman is on duty whenever there is a fire, consequently the solicitor did not press the matter.

Another request that council pay John Martin, a former paid fireman who was incapacitated for 29 days after a fire last year, $72 out of the Firemen's Relief Fund was made by the New Haven Hose Company but no action was taken. Once before council refused to pay this as the relief fund is for the relief of volunteers only. Martin did not receive pay while he was ill.

MEAT PRICES UP

Another Advance Is Hitting the Consumer Hard.

As if the price of meat had not already hit a spot so high as to make it a luxury instead of a necessity the butchers have advanced them to a still higher level. The market for hides and tallow, it is claimed, has slumped to such an extent that the packers have to boost their rates on the other products of the beavers in order to make a profit on their business.

Butchers now have to pay as high as 15 cents a pound for whole hoot and there is nothing on the hoot that can be bought at less than 10 cents a pound.

Round steak has jumped to 25 cents a pound, sirloin 28 cents and tenderloin to 30 cents. Other meats are high in proportion. Chuck roast is 20 cents, and rib roast from 22 to 24 cents.

OLD ACCOUNT FOR CHURCH PAYING IS TAKEN OFF BOOKS

City Will Not Carry Charge Against Catholic Congregation.

THE INCIDENT IS NOW CLOSED

History of the Case Shows Trustees Petitioned for Street Paving and Then Availed Themselves of Exemption Offered Churches Under Law.

An unpaid claim of $864.92 against the Immaculate Conception Church for street paving was wiped off the books of council last night. No formal action was taken but the councilmen made no objection to Mr. Duggan's suggestion not to carry this along as an asset of the city if there is no possibility of collecting it.

According to the history of the case, as outlined by Solicitor Higbee, back in 1911 trustees of the church petitioned council for paving, agreeing to pay under the system then in use, two-thirds cost by the property owners and one-third by the city. When the time came for collection, however, the church refused to pay, availing itself of the act of assembly which exempts churches from paving charges. The time for filing liens having elapsed, J. Kirk Renner, solicitor for the borough, filed two suits, one against the church and against the trustees personally, based upon the petition they had signed for the paving. These were subsequently dropped. Solicitor Higbee told council that the only way of collecting this account was by instituting suit again as no lien could be filed. Mr. Duggan suggested that the account be wiped from the books. The church paid $277 for paving in front of the parish residence, school and home.

The matter came up in connection with the discussion of the collection of old paving accounts, a task undertaken by Assistant Solicitor F. E. Younk.

He will have a report in at the next meeting. The contract to print 300 municipal claim forms in connection with this work was awarded to The Courier for $3.

A crusade against bad sidewalks is to be undertaken this summer. A list of those that are to be replaced is being prepared and will be submitted to council at the next meeting.

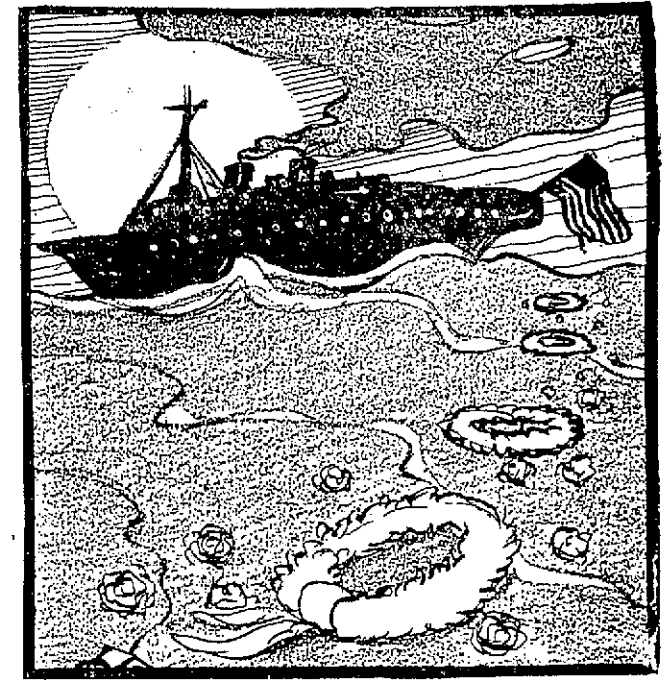

Harry Decker of Ninth street and Blackstone road, complained to council that the sewer in front of his house is not adequate to take care of the water during a heavy rain.

The long discussed plan to open Tenth street from Apple street to the Third Ward school house came up again when C. E. Young offered to give the city 17 inches off his property. To make this a 20 foot alley will necessitate shaving off about six feet from the property of William Arlis in the rear. The city engineer will survey the alley and council will then decide what to do.

Worth Kilpatrick asked council to exempt the Methodist Protestant Church from taxes on two frame houses on Apple street now being torn down to make room for an addition to the church. The request was granted.

Bids were directed to be taken for four trees for the motor truck which is being made out of the East Side fire wagon.

All councilmen were present at the meeting.

VETERANS PAY THEIR ANNUAL TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF DEPARTED CIVIL WAR HEROES

COUNCIL STARTS A CRUSADE AGAINST SPEEDING IN CITY

Autolists and Motorcyclists Must Comply With the 16-Mile Regulation; Ban on Cutoos.

City Council is to undertake a vigorous crusade against automobile and motorcycle speeding and against noisy cutoos. This was decided at the meeting last night, at which Solicitor Higbee outlined the ways of procedure against offenders of this sort.

Mr. Higbee ventured the statement that on South Pittsburg street, where he lives, not one out of 100 automobilists keeps within the 15 mile limit and not 10 out of 100 within the 24 mile rate. Worst of all, he said, are the motorcyclists. Motor vehicles go so fast he declared, that it is impossible to get the numbers.

"They only speed up where your policeman aren't," said the solicitor. "Down town they have to keep within the speed limits for their own safety."

NEW SCHOOL AUDITOR.

Court to Name Successor to Fred D. Munson on the Board.

When the school auditors for 1916 are named by the court, F. D. Munson will not be eligible for reappointment because of the fact that he has been recently named a member of the county board of voters, the two offices being incompatible.

J. M. Grey is likely to be reappointed but who the other auditor will be is not known. A number of applicants have already petitioned court for the job.

NEEDLE IN FINGER.

Miss Gladys Hirtleman Suffers a Painful Injury.

Miss Gladys Hirtleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Hirtleman of Francis avenue, suffered a painful injury yesterday when a sewing machine needle went through the top of one of her fingers.

While operating the machine she forgot to take her hand away as the needle descended and the sharp point perforated the end.

FIVE FOR STREET WORK

Men Spend Today In Cells But Will Work Tomorrow.

Five prisoners were given street sentences by Mayor Marietta this morning. The men will spend today in the cells, however, in observance of Memorial Day. Tomorrow they will serve out the remainder of their terms.

Two prisoners given sentences yesterday are also finishing up in the cells today.

Two Hurt at Work.

Rock White of Dunbar, 31 years old, is at the Cottage State Hospital for treatment of a fractured leg suffered yesterday while at work at the American Manganeuse plant. George Miller of Trotter, 26 years old, met with an accident while at work in the mines yesterday which resulted in an injured knee.

Struck by Lightning.

The office of the Latrobe-Connellsville Coal & Coke Company was struck by lightning Sunday, causing a slight blaze in the building.

Veteran Miner Dies.

L. Hamilton Young, for many years the assessor at Smithton, died Sunday in the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg. Mr. Young was a veteran miner.

Customary Services are Held in Hill Grove Cemetery on Memorial Day.

SOME OF THE VETERANS IN LINE

Ald Foreign Service Men, Company D, Cadets and Boy Scouts in the Annual Tribute to Civil War Heroes; Memorial Day Observed Elsewhere.

Memorial Day was observed in Connellsville today as befitting the day—solemnly and reverently with a true patriotic spirit evident. Despite the overcast skies, there was a good turnout for the parade and the cemeteries were a mass of color. Few graves were neglected and the lots showed the results of the attention given them by cemetery employees and owners.

The parade was slow getting started. Despite the requests that all of the organizations be at city hall promptly at 8.15 there were some lags and it was 8.45 before the band finally led off the march to the cemeteries. The Connellsville Military Band as usual headed the procession and behind came the members of William F. Kurtz Post No. 104, Grand Army of the Republic, most of them on foot, and carrying bouquets and baskets of flowers.

The Sons of Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Ladies' Circle to the G. A. R. also had good-sized turnouts in the parade. The ladies and some of the veterans rode in carriages, 11 of which were in line. Besides each carriage as a guard of honor marched two Boy Scouts, one on each side. Company D and the Cadets joined the parade later.

Through a misunderstanding as to the time, the school children were not gathered on the high school lawn to sing "America" as the line marched by.

Graves of 163 soldiers in Chestnut Hill cemetery were first decorated after which the parade reformed and went to Hill Grove cemetery where the same service was performed for those who lie beneath the sod there. The G. A. R. memorial ritual was gone through at both cemeteries by the officers of the post.

The Italians of Connellsville conducted a parade at 10 o'clock, marching to their cemetery headed by a fine band.

The colored churches and societies conducted memorial services at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, marching to the cemetery in a body, with music by the colored band.

The afternoon of the day was given over to amusement, though the bad weather spoiled the plans of some. Baseball games, picnics, the movies and numerous other attractions were waiting to cater to the lighter spirits. Shady Grove Park opened its summer season.

Practically all business places were closed all day. Drug stores observed Sunday hours, being closed in the afternoon from 1 to 6. There was no work at the various other industrial establishments.

Memorial Day at Mill Run was observed this morning at 9 o'clock with services in the Indian Creek Baptist Church. This evening the Mill Run Cornet Band will render a program of musical numbers at Colborn's cottage.

At Perryopolis, appropriate exercises were held in the Christian Church at 10 o'clock. Rev. W. J. Law made a stirring patriotic address. The decorating of the graves followed.

TUESDAY EVENING, MAY 30, 1916.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Memorial Day is set apart by law and custom for the purpose of honoring the soldier dead. On this day we recall their sacrifices; we glorify their memories; we assure ourselves and the country that they did not die in vain. We plant flowers on their graves, and revive our own loyalty; we listen to the stirring strains of music, and our souls are flooded with patriotism. In these uplifting hours we highly resolve to dedicate ourselves anew to the service of our country. One would think that such dedication would be devout, sincere, searching, free from folly, high above the little things of life, and lasting for a day at least in its impressions. Yet candor compels the statement that Memorial Day is but half observed.

The surviving veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, now a mere handful of gray and aged men awaiting the trumpet call to join their comrades on fabled eternal camping ground, complain with bitterness and not without reason that there is a woeful lack of respect for Memorial Day. They point out that a portion of it is commonly given over to athletic sports, picnics and other diversions. They declare that its lessons are utterly lost to the large portion of the people, including many of the rising generation, whose minds should be peculiarly receptive to the example of loyalty to flag and to country which the proper observance of this day inculcates.

During recent years business men have endeavored to promote the observance of Memorial Day in its best sense by closing their stores and turning their clerks free to participate in its ceremonies, but this does not seem to have had the effect intended. The Pittsburgh Gazette Times remarks concerning it:

"The observance of business furnishing the key to the situation. It means a holiday, and that being the case there is small hope of securing it from the grip of the sporting element. From this great component of the American population no holiday is safe. The Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, no less than Memorial Day have fallen victims to the insatiable appetite for idle pleasures and have become more notable for these features of the various diversions than for anything else."

The nation's holidays, for instance, have become far more noteworthy of late years for the multiplicity of field, track and youth events than for reasons such patriotic observances as the rendering of the Declaration of Independence or the commemoration of the nation's birth. It is true that the day has lost its identity. Labor Day is celebrated as such in a rather perfunctory manner than all hands turn their attention to the great athletic attractions of the baseball doubleheader and the field and track games of early autumn. Thanksgiving, it is a national holiday, but it is a day when the majority of the population is engaged in the pursuit of pleasure. The holiday of May 30th is no exception. It is a day when the majority of the population is engaged in the pursuit of pleasure.

The veterans are not alone in thinking that Memorial Day should remain wholly sacred to the cause of Patriotism. All good citizens feel the same way. But they are powerless against the custom which has made this and other patriotic holidays occasions of personal enjoyment.

The Courier urged some years ago that Memorial Day be observed on the last Sunday in May instead of the 30th day of the month. We pointed out the impossibility of keeping the day sacred so long as it was observed on a week day and suggested that its being held on Sunday would protect its solemn memories from being broken in upon by the pranks of the careless or the rebaldy of the ignorant.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

The question of price for bituminous coal is receiving more attention from owners and operators of mines now than ever before. With the steady increases in all items of cost which enter into the production of coal it is becoming vitally necessary to the well-being of the industry that higher selling prices be secured. Certain conditions exist which make the attainment of this object more or less an uncertainty at this time. Pending a change to more satisfactory conditions the inquiries into the actual costs of production and the feasibility of some means of regulating production are receiving very careful consideration by mining men and others interested in the problem. Upon this subject the Coal Mining Review makes these pertinent observations:

"Never in the history of the country has there been a more general and uniform demand or a larger consumption of coal than at present. Never in the history of the coal mining industry has there been a more favorable opportunity for earning high wages. At no time was the actual cost of producing coal higher than now. With these conditions confronting the operator the question naturally in his mind is how can he obtain such a price for a ton of coal which will enable him to pay the cost of producing coal and earn a reasonable profit on his investment. The first thing an operator should determine is what it actually costs to produce a ton of coal, when every item of expense is included in the cost of production. When the total cost has been determined the consumer ought to be informed in order that he may understand why it will cost more to purchase a ton of coal than an otherwise successful coal operator has been swept on the rocks of financial ruin, because he insisted on selling the product of his mine at a price per ton which did not yield any profit. It is the low price tonnage which creates market conditions which are ruinous to the operator and miner. The remedy against the evil effect of Cheap Coal is for the large and small producers to get together and refuse to sell the product of their mines, unless the price per ton received will enable the operator to pay fair wages and earn a reasonable profit on his investment in the development and operation of the mines."

This remedy provided by this suggestion is simple and should prove effective if made operative, but the difficulty seems to lie in arousing mine owners to the necessity of coming together on a basis of mutual helpfulness. There has been too much competition between the several districts to invite that spirit of co-operation which is the essential element in organized effort. One group of operators has been pitted in the markets against another group to the detriment of both. Disregarding that community of interest which should prevail among producers of the same product, much energy and money have been wasted in getting business from each other when by joint effort conditions could be changed to the material advantage of each.

There should be a Pulling Together that the price of coal may be pulled up.

PURGING DEMOCRACY.

While denying the mild, but time-honored impeachment "that a man has to drink to be a Democrat in good standing," William Grapentine Bryan makes no concealment of his purpose to drive the liquor element out of the Democratic party.

In the aid of an early and vigorous entry upon his new crusade he urges that the purging begin before the Republicans have, of their own initiative, divested themselves of their habitually inclined associations. The necessity for haste in this matter lies in the fact that the Great Purge has that if the Republicans start house-cleaning first of all the undesirable in their ranks will go over to the Democratic party. Of this class we are confidently assured the Democrats already have so large a number that there is no room for more.

Without doubting the accuracy of the latter assertion we are confident that the fear is groundless that the Democratic party is in danger of becoming overcrowded by involuntary accession of "wet" Republicans. After Mitchell Palmer and Bruce Sterling have escorted the New Freedom sheep from the Old Guard goats, and the Big Steve has "vined" the "drys" from the "wets," there will be so few real Democrats left that any sort of re-graduation or degeneration Republicans will be welcomed to the fold with glad acclaim, had without being required to pass any sobriety test.

NON-PARTISAN BALLOT LAW.

It further proof were wanting of the inefficiency of the non-partisan ballot it was supplied by the recent primary. The two leading candidates for judge of the Supreme Court were not nominated because they failed to receive 50% of the total vote cast, which the law provides as necessary to a choice. Having failed of nomination by this absurd provision of the ballot law, both candidates will have to go before the voters again at the November election.

This furnishes a concrete example which serves to show that the law has, as the Philadelphia Press characterizes it, "made judicial elections more of a gamble than an intelligent choice." It serves also to show how the will of the majority, as expressed at the polls, may be defeated. Comparatively few citizens voted for the candidates for the Supreme Court judgeship, as not a sufficient number of votes were cast to make the total received by any one candidate 50% of all the votes cast at the primary. Notwithstanding the fact that two candidates received a majority of the votes which were cast, for the office, both failed of nomination and the voters of those who expressed their choice were uselessly cast.

The framers of the non-partisan ballot law may have been, and doubtless were, actuated by the best intentions. But they made an inglorious failure of it. The law is so full of defects, inconsistencies and inoperable provisions that the next legislature can probably best amend it by enacting a repealer.

James J. Hill will be known to fame as an empire builder because he had the courage and the backing to build a great transcontinental railroad through the northwest country when it was little better than a wilderness. It did not build the railroad for the business that awaited it in cities and towns along the line, but rather for the business which would be developed by the development of the rich farmlands through which the railroad ran. Time amply justified his judgment. Not all the property of this country is due to its war orders for munitions. The great wealth of the northwest is due to the fact that a large portion of it is in the hands of the farmers who have maintained it as well as the means of taking it away.

With a single exception, Connelville's industries are running at a prosperity pace.

The protest of the Catholic members of the Dunbar Township High School through Father Greaney against baselaudate sermons by Protestant ministers is a matter of faith and may not be gained. The Dunbar township school authorities had perhaps better consider anew the old question of how much aid for religion should be taught in the public schools. It has never seemed to us to be necessary to teach religion in the public schools of Fayette county because of its large and growing number of churches charged with the special duty of propagating religion.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Bismarck."

Memorial Day is the first spring holiday but the people are welcomed with joyous shouts by millions of American citizens because of the splendid opportunity which it offers for a "double header" baseball games, automobile races, interurban regattas, boxing matches, marathons, golf tournaments and aeroplane races.

This would indicate that Memorial Day was invented for the purpose of making it impossible for us to forget our glorious outdoor sports. This is not true, however. It was originally not added as a day for the nation to remember and honor the men who thought so much more of their country than they did of themselves that they consented to die for it for a month, with a possible pension for their widows and orphans if there should be any money left in the United States Treasury after the Congressmen got through building political positions.

The real athletic sporting event on Memorial Day, therefore, is the one in which a large number of men averaging seventy years of age try to see how many hitches they can march behind the flag and drum before they drop out to rest. It still draws a large audience, to the disgust of the sturdy young football runner who could beat the whole bunch in relay.

Thousands of people go to the cemeteries on Memorial Day and strew flowers on the graves of the soldier dead. Among these people, however, we seldom find the devoted watchdogs of the treasury who live in and up the pension totals.

Horrid watchdogs of the treasury, who live in and up the pension totals.

dead. Among these people, however, we seldom find the devoted watchdogs of the treasury who live in and up the pension totals.

Memorial Day, however, is a good day on which to remember that most of these indignant patriots or their fathers stayed at home during the war and harassed the enemy chiefly at making faces at it.

On Memorial Day we should also remember that if 50,000,000 men loved this country well enough to die for it, we ought to love it enough to cast a vote or two each year entirely free of charge.

Special to The Courier.
YOUNGWOOD, May 30.—Good Roads Day was observed by citizens of Youngwood and vicinity. The work was concentrated on Arambust Hill, the worst piece of road in this neighborhood. As the work was being done, the Pennsylvania railroad to Weaver's Old Stand and five teams were there to haul them. The steam roller was also used. W. G. WHAT NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED Wonderfully Speedy New Relief for Tired, Worn Out, Shattered, Languishing Nervous Systems.

It is simply marvelous, the speedy relief that a single Margo Tablet will give any man or woman whose nerves are upset, unstrung or dulled, tired and ambitionless. Every tablet seems to go straight to the nerve cells, overcoming in just a few moments fatigue, despondency, "jumps," "dips," nervous indigestion and all those other symptoms of run-down nerves that are so surely the forerunners of nervous prostration and general nervous breakdown.

Margo vitalizes your tired, overworked nerves into nerves of steel, charging them with powers of tremendous endurance and reserve energy and does it without a single dangerous drug. Margo is a scientific combination of six of the most powerful and effective, yet absolutely harmless, nerve stimulants known to chemistry and a month's systematic use should completely transform the worst nervous wreck into a strong, healthy, vigorous man or woman.

Margo really does more good in the average case of "nerves" than a month's vacation because it not only "rests" the nerves but puts new snap and "glitter" and courage into your entire body.

Margo must accomplish these things or its cost is nothing. Laughrey Drug Co., and other leading druggists in Connellsville sell it with this absolute guarantee, positively agreeing to refund the price paid to any patron who fails to derive great benefit from 60 days' faithful use. Adv.

Woman Antist Takes No Chances Going Through Strange Towns.

When the warning signal on an automobile driven by a local woman failed to act while the party was passing through Irwin, headed in this direction Saturday, no chances were taken with the police of Greensburg and Mount Pleasant. After two garage repairmen failed to remedy the defect of the signal, heroic methods were adopted.

Going into a 5 and 10 cent store, a brightly bedecked tin horn was purchased. The woman starting the horn and it is said the results were equal to that of a motor-driven signal.

Why that knock

Bent cam-shaft? Maybe. Timing-gears a little loose? Perhaps. Ten-to-one, the power plant is chuck-full of carbon. And it was only last month you had the valves reground. Good Night! There you are—the symptoms are unmistakable: improper lubrication.

Atlantic Motor Oils will offset that condition like magic. They will diminish carbon to an absolute minimum and the knock will take to the tall timber in the bargain.

Atlantic Motor Oils are not prescribed as a panacea for car-troubles, but they are recommended by the oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world as the correct lubricants for all makes of motors.

Polarine, the famous year-round lubricant, is exactly right for eight out of ten cars. Under certain conditions, your particular motor may require one of the other principal motor oils—Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium," or Atlantic "Heavy." Your garageman will advise you which.

Actual tests demonstrate that proper lubrication often increases gasoline-mileage by as much as five miles to the gallon. That's worth considering.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garageman for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED BY CONFLUENCE PAIR

Many Folks Attend Anniversary Dinner of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weaver.

RECEIVE HANDSOME PRESENTS

Two of the Guests Witnessed the Marriage of the Couple 50 Years Ago. Moved to Confluence in 1867. Mr. Weaver is a Veteran of the Civil War.

Surrounded by their children, 13 grandchildren and other relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Weaver, well known residents of Confluence, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday at their home. At noon a well appointed dinner was served, covers being laid for members of the family and out of town guests at the reception from 3 to 5 o'clock. During the hour of the reception about 60 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Weaver called at the Weaver home and congratulated the honor guests upon the happy occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver in commemoration of the event were presented $50 in gold, in addition to cut glass, linen, fine china and other useful gifts. The only two guests at the reception who witnessed the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Weaver were H. F. Viedendorfer of New Kensington, Pa., a brother of Mrs. Weaver, and Mrs. John Conter of Clearfield, Pa., a sister. It was the first visit of Mr. Viedendorfer to the Weaver home in 38 years.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Weaver took place May 27, 1866 at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. John Viedendorfer near Mohauon, Pa. The couple lived at various places prior to moving to Confluence in 1892, where they have since resided. Mrs. Weaver's maiden name was Miss Mary Viedendorfer. At the age of 18 years Mr. Weaver enlisted in the Union army as a member of Company F, 20th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served throughout the war. He participated in all the fighting at Petersburg, Va. and saw the final struggle in 1865. He was at the surrender of Lee at Appomattox Court House.

Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, five of whom are living and were present at the reunion. They are also the grandparents of 15 grandchildren. The celebration was one of the largest and most enjoyable of the kind held at Confluence and vicinity in recent years. A color scheme of gold and white was attractively carried out in all details. Cut flowers were artistically placed about in all the rooms while three chandeliers were adorned with costly colored shades. The children presented Mrs. Weaver with a gold watch at home; Mrs. L. L. Nale of Huntingdon, Pa.; Mrs. Edwin S. Marsh of Confluence; Mrs. B. F. Tressler, Mrs. H. C. Dean and John Weaver, all of Confluence. The grandchildren are Ethel, Helen, Carl, John, Fred and Edna Nale, all of Huntingdon; Miss Mary Frances Marsh of Confluence; Walter and Louise Tressler, Harold, Kenneth, Margarette, Juanita and Eleanor Dean and Jean Elizabeth Weaver, all of Confluence. Other out of town guests were Mrs. Bert Grafman and two children of Clearfield, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Johnson of Pottsville; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fisher and son of Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. James B. Reed of Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neishorgall and son of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Mrs. W. B. Conway of Rockwood.

McCombs Maker of Wilson

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Constitutional leaders spread the faces of Democratic leaders when they read a few days ago the true story of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, a story of devotion and self-sacrifice on the part of W. F. McCombs, of New York, who started the Wilson campaign, conducted it, largely financed it, and won it, even with the opposition of Col. E. M. House, now the President's confidential advisor, and without the help of W. C. McAdoo, the chief beneficiary of Wilson's election.

And the reason for the consternation is plain. While McCombs makes no charge of ingratitude against Wilson, no man can doubt for a moment that every American citizen will draw the inference when he has read the facts. The lover of fair play does not like an ingrate. The Democratic leaders fear the consequences of the disclosure.

The story has thus far been published by only two newspapers, but it is certain to gain wide circulation before the November election. It is a long story, when given in detail, but may be briefly summarized. McCombs is a New York lawyer, a graduate of Princeton, a personal friend of Wilson's for many years, and a staunch supporter of Wilson in the difficulties he encountered while President of Princeton University. McCombs started the boom for Wilson for Governor of New Jersey and immediately after the success of that movement, he induced Wilson to make a speaking tour of the United States, which McCombs managed with such tact as to arouse no antagonisms but gain wide publicity for a man then little known to the country at large.

McCombs then opened headquarters in New York, paid the rent, hired the stenographers, bought the postage stamps, paid the bill and asked for no contributions until he had demonstrated what he could do with a practically unknown candidate. At one time his campaign was $60,000 in debt, for which McCombs was personally and solely responsible. Wilson came over from New Jersey for consultations on Friday night, and was frequently so discouraged with the outlook that he wanted to quit and avoid humiliation. But McCombs wasn't the quitting kind. When his own resources were exhausted he went out and begged money from his friends—his own and friends of Wilson's. Because of the troubles of his own, McAdoo couldn't help, and because he doubted the success of the movement, House wouldn't. In fact, McAdoo had not met Wilson until after McCombs had started the campaign and after the nomination House came back from Europe and got a letter from McCombs introducing him to Wilson.

By his publicity work, his letter writing and personal appeals to friends, McCombs gained the initial support of 327 delegates at Baltimore and organized the convention fight in such a manner as to hold his forces practically solid, even when Chan Clark had majority on the floor. Through an agreement with Roger Sullivan, of Illinois, McCombs gained the first vote that indicated a break from Wilson, when Illinois voted for Bryan. McCombs was the forty-first ballot and being pledged for only five ballots. But this piece of strategy was enough to start the break, and Bryan, seeing the opportunity, made his grandstand play which won him credit for nominating Wilson.

At no time did McCombs count on Bryan as a dependable asset. In fact, Bryan's brother tried to persuade McCombs to quit, but the latter replied: "Mr. Bryan, you have come to the wrong man. To stick by my friends is the better part of my religion." It was that last-ditch spirit that started, maintained, and won the Wilson nomination. If Wilson had treated McCombs decently, that same spirit might have marked his administration—a spirit that would have added strength to the Wilson cabinet, a spirit that would have served the American people well in the past three years, a spirit that will be lacking in the Democratic campaign of 1916, for McCombs is to retire as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

VETERANS AT SMITHFIELD OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Rev. Goodnight Is the Speaker, With Three Bands on Program; Services at Cemetery.

SMITHFIELD, May 30.—Memorial Day was fittingly observed here today. After the usual services at the cemetery the day's exercises were concluded in the Methodist Episcopal Church with the following program. Music by the choir; prayer, Rev. Paul Elliott; reading, Lincoln's Gettysburg address by the adjutant of Jerry Jones Post, G. A. R.; music by the choir; recitation by Martha Sutton of an original poem composed by David Hope of Brownville; recitation, "Grandpa's Speech," by Rita Bailey; recitation, "Our Veterans," Elizabeth Abraham; recitation, "Memorial Day," Madeline Malone; music by the band; address, Rev. Cloyd Goodnight; solo, Ruth Bailey; benediction, Rev. W. M. Ryan.

The Salvation Army Band of Uniontown and Thomas Robinson's Band of Gars and Howard Jennings' five and drum corps of Smithfield furnished music for all the services.

The post attended services in the Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday when Rev. W. M. Ryan, preached a stirring sermon appropriate to the occasion. After this service, which was in the forenoon, the post went to Woodbridge town in the afternoon and held a memorial service in the cemetery, connected with the chapel there, where 11 of their comrades are buried. Among the number buried at a E. Ryan was at whose grave the post and Sunday school had been in session in the church assembled. The post conducted a service as laid down in the ritual, after which all returned to the church where a program was rendered.

DISCUSSES DIVORCE

Rev. R. L. Hayes Takes Interesting Topic at Dunbar.

The first of a series of public lectures on Christian Doctrine was delivered in St. Augustus Church at Dunbar last night. Rev. Hayes explained the Catholic position on the divorce question. He said in part:

"The doctrine of the church about perfect divorce is well known and almost universally lauded. This legislation is associated with the more fundamental doctrine that the married state is a union hallowed by any natural union can be; it is sacramental. Marriage according to the Catholic belief is not only a natural contract between husband and wife, but it has been elevated for Christians by Jesus Christ to the dignity of a sacrament. We teach that God is the author of the married state. Marriage owes its origin to the Creator of heaven and earth. When Christ came on earth, He inaugurated His mission at the wedding-feast of Cana in Galilee. By a special enactment He set marriage apart and placed upon it the greatest things of life. When St. Paul desired to institute a comparison by means of which to convey to the Christian world some idea of the sanctity of the married state, he compared the love of husband and wife to the love of Christ for His church."

"This marriage bond once validly contracted can never be dissolved during the life-time of the parties. A separation may be warranted for certain grave reasons, but death alone can dissolve a valid marriage. In Matthew x, Luke xvi, Romans vii, I Corinthians vii, we have the plain teaching of Jesus Christ and His great apostles that marriage validly contracted is indissoluble. No exception is made for any cause in these texts. Hence we have six separate and distinct texts of the inspired Scriptures which permit of no second marriage after the dismissal of one of the parties; no exception is even hinted at, and it must be remembered that it is not for every moral precept that we have such an accumulation of proof. The only text that can be called doubtful is Matthew xix in which is placed an exception clause for marital infidelity. This text has two parts, one referring to the dismissal of the guilty party, and the other to remarriage. The Catholic Church teaches that the exception clause refers to the first part of Christ's discourse so that on account of marital infidelity it is permissible to dismiss the guilty party; non-Catholics claim that it refers to the second part of the text so that on account of marital infidelity, the innocent party may marry again. It would appear therefore that the text is obscure, and we must seek its real meaning by comparing it with other texts of the author. In similar circumstances, treating the same subject, we must call in other texts of Scripture; we must examine how the disciples of the Teacher interpreted His words; we must consult the sense of the faithful which is handed down by an uninterrupted tradition. And all these manifest that the 'preponderance of probability is in favor of the Catholic interpretation. In fact, this interpretation is the only one that is at all consonant with Christ's other teachings on the subject of divorce." This evening the interesting topic of "Fugatory, or Life Beyond the Grave," will be discussed.

ADULTERATED FOODS.

Simple Tests by Which Impurities May Be Detected.

Some simple tests for adulterants in food are given by S. Leonard Bastin in the Scientific American. Here are a few of them:

Put a small bit of butter in a teaspoon and hold it over a gas flame. Real butter boils quietly, producing a quantity of small bubbles; margarine crackles and splutters.

Put dry tea leaves in a clean white cloth. Pure tea will leave no mark; dyed tea will leave a stain. Make an almost saturated solution of sugar in water; place this in a clean glass tube and stand it in front of some print. If the sugar is pure it should be possible to read easily through the solution.

Put a piece of bread in a saucer and pour a solution of carbonate of ammonia over it. If it turns blue the bread will turn black. If the bread is pure no change will take place.

Dilute a sample of jam or jelly with an equal quantity of water. Put a bit of cotton batting into it and boil for half an hour. Now try to wash out the stain. This will be easy if the jam is pure; impossible if it has been dyed.

Add a few drops of methyl indigo violet to some vinegar. If this is pure it will not change color; if adulterated, it will turn blue or green.

OUR AIR WILL NOT FAIL US.

No Need to Fear That the Nitrogen Will Ever Be Exhausted.

A student at the University of Washington, having read about making nitrogen from the air, entered the chemistry department and asked the professors there what would happen when all the nitrogen had been taken out of the air. The University of Washington News-Letter says that this is what they told him:

"The atmosphere over a square mile of land is estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of nitrogen, which is enough to furnish all the world would require for fifty years at the present rate of consumption. Even if that were not so, there would be no danger, for there's a sort of 'dust to dust' process involved that is a safeguard in itself. 'Nitrites' when they go into the soil are taken up by the roots of plants and utilized. After the plant decays the nitrogen is given off, and it returns again to the atmosphere."

"If employed in the manufacture of explosives, when the charge is exploded part of the nitrate returns to the air as gas, while some goes into solution, falls to the earth and is taken up by the plants, returning later to the air."

A GERMAN ARMY CORPS.

What It Means to Move and Feed and Form in Fighting Line.

In the nonmilitary mind there is only a vague idea as to the space required for a German army corps.

According to a German writer, a German army corps consists of 41,000 men, 14,000 horses and 2,400 vehicles, including the cannon. Such a body of men and their belongings on a single road make a procession about thirty miles long.

Even when in fairly close touch, with the enemy the length of a corps is about fifteen miles, and when the front detachments become engaged in a battle it is five or six hours before the men in the rear get into action to assist them.

An army of ten corps would fight on a front about thirty-seven miles long, and a man who undertakes to walk from one wing to the other would require twelve or fourteen hours to do it. An army corps consumes nearly 800,000 pounds of food a day, about 100,000 pounds for the men and 200,000 pounds for the horses. Even under the most favorable conditions it requires a train of 150 wagons to bring up a day's food.

To Fatten the Goat.

"Where are you going with that goat, little boy?" "Down to the lake. Come along if you want to see some fun. This goat has just got a crate of sponges, and I'm going down and let him drink!"—Exchange.

When the Window Sticks.

Take each window cord in hand at the same time and pull them out until the weights are up at the top. Let go suddenly and they will drop in place with sufficient force to start the window open, when no amount of pushing will do it.

ION-O-LEX

Coughs Colds Pneumonia

The neglected cough turns into bronchitis or pneumonia—and as a result, 140,000 Americans die every year.

ION-O-LEX quickly relieves the inflamed condition of the throat and chest—and the patient gets well. That is all it does—just stops inflammation—but that is the one thing that has to be done to cure the disease.

ION-O-LEX is not a drug—it contains no narcotics or opiates. Its action is purely mechanical. It is harmless and almost tasteless—and it does not interfere with any other treatment.

A Detroit Woman writes:

Your remedies have cured me of a severe case of PNEUMONIA. I took a bad cold which affected my throat, and finally settled in my lungs. The pain was almost unbearable, affecting my back, sides and chest. It was very difficult for me to breathe, and very frequently I would cough up a bloody substance from my lungs. I was delirious for nearly half an hour. ION-O-LEX (syrup and liquid) were used according to directions. The next morning I was entirely relieved of pain, and temperature was normal. In two days the soreness had left me, and I was feeling almost as well as ever.

The original of this letter is on file at the ION-O-LEX office, together with hundreds of others equally convincing and amazing.

ION-O-LEX is not a quick medicine. It is a remarkable scientific discovery that has been used for some time by the most prominent physicians, and in the military hospitals of England.

The IRON TRAIL

BY REX BEACH

Copyright, 1913, by Harper & Brothers.

"Mr. O'Neill is out there," she cried to Tom.

"Water turned and, reading the tragic aspect in her face, said reassuringly: "Sure! But he's all right."

"They say—there's danger." Happy Tom's round visage puckered into a doubtful smile. "Oh, he'll take care of himself."

Mellen turned to the girl and said briefly:

"There's no danger whatever." But Mellen's face was not to be so easily quieted.

"Then why did he go out alone? What are you men doing here?"

"It's his orders," Tom told her.

Mellen was staring at the jam below, over which the Salmon was hurling a flood of ice and foaming waters.

The stream was swelling and rising steadily. Already it had nearly reached the level of the timber line on the left bank.

The blockade was extending upstream almost to the bridge itself. Mellen said something to Parker, who shook his head silently.

Don Appleton shouldered his way out of the crowd, with Natalie at his heels. She had dressed herself in haste. Her hair was loose; her jacket was buttoned away. On one foot was a shoe, on the other a bedroom slipper, muddy and soiled. Her dark eyes were big with excitement.

"Why don't you make Murray come in?" Dan demanded sharply.

"He won't do it," muttered Slater.

From the creaks of the workmen came a bellow of triumph as an unusually heavy keel was swept against the breakers and sent astunder.

The tumult of the hurried waters below was growing louder every moment. Across the lake came a steaming rumble as a huge mass was loosened from the front of Garfield.

The channel of the Salmon where the onlookers stood was a heaving, churning cauldron over which the slim bridge hung itself defiantly.

Eliza plucked at her brother's sleeve impudently, and he saw her for the first time.

"Hello, sis!" he cried. "How did you get here?"

"I'm in danger, Donny!"

"Yes—no! Mellen says it's all right, so it must be, but—what dam!"

At that moment Natalie began to sob hysterically, and Dan turned his attention to her.

But his sister was not of the hysterical kind. Seizing Tom Slater by the arm, she tried to shake him, demanding fiercely:

"Suppose the jam doesn't give way? What will happen?"

"Yes—no! Mellen says it's all right, so it must be, but—what dam!"

you do this mad thing? I saw something in your face that I can't believe—that I can't think possible. It gives me courage. If I don't speak quickly I'll never dare. Is it true? Don't girl, can it be? I'm so old—such a poor thing! You couldn't possibly care, and yet why did you come?"

The words were torn from him. He was gripped and shaken by a powerful emotion.

She tried to answer, but her lips were numb. She closed her eyes, and Murray saw that she was whiteer than the foam far beneath. He stared into the colorless face upturned to his until her eyelids fluttered open, and she managed to voice the words that clung in her throat.

"I've always—loved you like this!"

He gave a cry like that of a starving man. She felt herself drawn against him. But now he, too, was speechless.

"Confound you, see?" she asked breathlessly.

He shook his head. "I'm such a dreamer. I'm afraid I can't be true. I'm afraid you'll go away and—leave me. You won't ever—will you, Eliza?"

I couldn't stand that." Then fresh realization of the truth swept over him. They clung to each other, drunk with ecstasy.

"I thought you cared for Natalie," she said softly after awhile.

"It was always you."

"Always?"

"Always?"

She turned her lips to his and lifted her entwining arms.

The breakfasts gone had called the men away before the two figures far out upon the bridge picked their way slowly to the shore. The Salmon was still flooded with hurrying masses of ice, as it would continue to be for several days, but it was running free. The channel in front of the glacier was open.

Blaine was the first to shake O'Neill's hand for the members of Murray's crew held aloft in some embarrassment.

"It's a perfect place of work," said he. "I congratulate you."

The others echoed his sentimentality, hesitatingly, for they were abashed at what they saw in their chief's face and realized that words were weak and meaningless.

Dan dared not trust himself to speak. He had many things to say to his sister, but his throat choked miserably. Natalie restrained herself only by the greatest effort.

It was Tom Slater who ended the awkward pause by grumbling sarcastically:

"It was always you."

"If all the young lovers are safely ashore maybe us old men who built the bridge can go and get something to eat."

Murray smiled at the girl beside him.

"I'm afraid they've guessed our secret, don't."

"Secret?" Slater rolled his eyes. "There ain't over a couple thousand people beside us that saw you pop the question. I s'pose she was out of breath and couldn't say no."

Eliza gasped and fled to her brother's arms.

"Slit! Poor little sis!" Dan cried, and two tears stole down his brown cheeks.

"Isn't this—just great?" Then the others burst into a noisy expression of their gladness.

Happy Tom regarded them all resentfully. "I feel bound to warn you," he said at length, "that marriage is an awful gamble. It ain't what it seems."

"It is!" Natalie declared. "It's better, and you know it."

"It turned out all right for me," Tom acknowledged, "because I got the best woman in the world. But"—he eyed his chief accusingly—"I went about it in a modest way. I didn't humiliate her in public."

He turned impatiently upon his companions, still pouring out their babble of congratulations.

"Come along, can't you," he cried, "and leave 'em alone? I'm a despicable old married man, but I used to be young and affectionate, like Murray. After breakfast I'm going to enable Mrs. Slater to come and bring the kids with her and watch her bedridden, invalid husband build the rest of this railroad. I'm getting chuck full of romance."

"It has been a marvellous morning for me," said Murray after a time, "and the greatest miracle is—you, dear."

"This is just the way the story ended in my book," Eliza told him happily. "Our book."

He pressed her closer. "Yes, our book, our bridge, our everything, Eliza."

She hid her blushing face against his shoulder, then with thumb and finger drew his ear down to her lips. Summoning her courage, she whispered:

"Murray, dear, won't you call me—Violet?"

THE END.

English and French.

It is truly a graceful speech, the French tongue. Plain, homely things of life, so bold and bare and disconcerting in the Anglo-Saxon, are less unlovely in the French. Indeed, the French word for "rags" is so pretty that we have conferred chignon on one of our dearest fabrics. But in the grace of the language lies also its weakness. It does not rise to the supreme utterances. I have been reading the Bible texts on the tombstones in the little cemetery of Charente.

"L'Éternel est mon Berger" can never rank in loftiness with "The Lord is my shepherd," nor "Que votre cœur ne se trouble point" with "Let not your heart be troubled."—Baltimore American.

LATIN WAS ARISTOCRATIC.

Sans Literature Sure to Be Anathematized by High Priests of Art.

There was a time when Latin was the language of aristocratic literature, and Dante had to defend himself for writing his poetry in his native but vulgar tongue, and even Edmund Spenser was criticised for refusing to use Latin meters in his English verse.

The same tradition of aristocratic expression in literature has animated academic criticism at all times. American literature will have to endure its condemnation. It was produce a literature that bears the same relation to American life that American plumbing does, for example, we shall be doing a sane thing, but a thing that will surely be anathematized by all the high priests of art. And they will anathematize it although literature has to be vital to be anything at all, although it has to serve life, not aesthetics; although the religion of "art for art's sake" is a religion that ministers to its idol, but not to humanity; although such religions are dying everywhere and the religion of social service is taking their place, and although the priests of art also, in their turn, will have to come down out of their temples to serve among the people or be mocked.—Harvey J. O'Higgins in Century.

Two Chewers of Siam.

"Chewing tea comes from Siam," said a traveler. "They call it miong. It is in a plug, like chewing tobacco, and it has a villainous smell. This smell is due to the fermentation it has undergone. The tea that the Siamese employ for chewing purposes is a very coarse, rank plant. It is gathered like ordinary tea, but the leaves after being compressed into plugs are buried for fifteen days. They ferment during burial. On their resurrection they are very, very fragrant indeed. The Siamese boatmen chew tea. The Chinese men chew it. The literatures chew it. They say it makes them work better. This is probably the truth, for I chewed a plug myself in Anam, and it exhilarated me strangely. But the aftertaste was bad—a headache, smarting eyes and nervous depression."

Early Story of Bermuda.

Discovered in 1482 by Juan de Bermudez, whose name was given to the delightful Bermuda islands, they lay for nearly a century in obscurity, until Admiral Sir George Somers and a party of Virginia colonists were wrecked on the islands, remaining there several months, while they built two small cedar pinaces. In these vessels the voyagers to the coast was continued, the colonists arriving at Jamestown only to find the people there without food and on the verge of starvation. Somers volunteered to return to Bermuda to obtain a cargo of wild hogs, which were plentiful, but his mission ended in his death. In 1612 the Virginia company sent out the first party of colonists to Bermuda, which sent out other colonists from time to time and endeavored to build up a profitable community for its shareholders.

May Fly Lives Only a Day, but Has a Gay Time While He Lasts.

Foolish insect! He lives only one day, and spends the greater part of it dancing. You've doubtless been a guest at one of their dances, held over a stream on a warm summer's evening. You've seen the insects in swarms, leaping up and down in fancy steps and intricate figures. You've attended the dance of the May flies.

There is a general supposition that all May flies live only for a day. As a matter of fact, they will live several days if the atmosphere isn't too dry. Then again they may survive only through a single night. Even this impending fate cannot stop them from dancing.

This brief lived characteristic, however, applies only to the winged existence of the insect. Before they grow wings they pass through several stages, from the larvae, which live in water, through several molts, and transformations. So while it is a May fly only for a short time it exists for a longer time, and perhaps we can pardon it if it dances during the brief period it lives in the air.

The fly has two pairs of wings, one pair much larger than the other, and two or three long, bristle-like tails. Its mouth is small and soft and not made for eating. The May fly has no time to eat. He's too busy dancing.—Philadelphia North American.

CONQUERS RHEUMATISM IN A VERY FEW DAYS

One-half teaspoonful of Rheuma taken once a day has driven the pain and agony from thousands of racked, crippled and despairing rheumatics during the last five years.

Powerful and sure; quick acting, yet harmless; Rheuma gives blessed relief almost at once. The magic name has reached every hamlet in the land and there is not a drugstore anywhere who cannot tell you—if he will—of almost untold cures.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE TARGET"—Hobart Bosworth, veteran of the speaking stage, and pioneer of the screen, never appeared to better advantage than he does in "The Target," the five-act Universal Red Feather production which comes to the Soisson Theatre today. The story of "The Target" was written by Norval MacGregor with all the care that this director loves to lavish on a big production. Many of the scenes are made in unique surroundings. One of the well-known critics of things theatrical, writing recently in a magazine of the mission of the photoplay, found fault with directors who depend too loyally on interior work, for attempting to do on the films that which, in his opinion, the legitimate stage could do better. "A Fight for Love" is a Blum two reel drama featuring Raymond Nye and Roberta Wilson. It is an interesting tale of the love of a girl in the underworld. "A Wife for a Ransom" is a Joker comedy with Gale Henry and William Franey. It is a laughable farce of strong-arm love making. "Her Great Part" is a Laemmle drama with Myrtle Gonzalez and Fred Church in the cast. A wife while happily married, is deeply interested in acting. She has many interesting experiences and is finally glad to return home. Tomorrow the Bluebird Photoplay Company present Louise Lovely in the thrilling five reel drama of vengeance, "The Gilded Spider."

GLOBE THEATRE.

"TO HAVE AND TO HOLD"—The pictured version of Mary Johnson's famous novel, in which Mae Murray, the beautiful Lasky star, makes her photodramatic debut, is featured today at the Globe. Miss Murray is an artist of unusual talent and prior to her engagement for a number of years in the Lasky Company, she devoted her time to the speaking stage. In "To Have and to Hold," Miss Murray will be seen as Lady Jocelyn Leigh, ward of King James the First of England, who flees to America to escape an undesirable marriage. How her loveless marriage upon her arrival in the colonies brings about a series of exciting adventures, must naturally be seen to be enjoyed. Wallace Reid, the distinguished Lasky actor, plays the role of Captain Ralph Percy, a gentleman adventurer in Jamestown. The production "To Have and to Hold" is unusual in its magnificence and one of the most lavish ever made by the Lasky Company, two large vessels being built especially for the production, one of which is wrecked at the height of a storm. The company had a strenuous time during the filming of the picture. For eight days Miss Murray and other members of the company were cut off from communication with the outside world while in a little town on the Pacific Coast. Immediately after leaving there, the company went over to the Catalina to film some exterior scenes and Miss Murray was left alone one entire night on a barren island during the height of a rainstorm and on account of the high seas it was with great difficulty that she was rescued. HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way.

People who are over-burdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over-stout people have to bear. If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of unhealthy fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital forces and are currying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation diet or tiresome exercise, here is a new worth trying. Spend as much time as you can on the open air, breathe deeply and get from A. A. Clarke or any good druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't leave off the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, and helps digestion. Even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, footstools become lighter, your work seems easier, and a lighter and more buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole being.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial.—Adv.

COMMISSIONER WISSER AIDED, SAYS DAUGHTER

Dravosburg Official Relieved of Distressing Catarrhal Affections.

Mrs. Wm. Kerfoot recently made the following statement regarding the benefits her father, Henry Wisser, street commissioner of Dravosburg, Pa., received from Tania, the master medicine.

"Yes," said Mrs. Kerfoot, "I came to give this statement about my father's experience with Tania. He was troubled terribly with catarrh of the head and stomach and he doctored for it for years. He always complained in the morning of a fullness of his head and said he didn't feel like he had enough energy to commence his day's work. He seldom ever ate breakfast, as he suffered from a sickening sensation which he attributed to the accumulations of catarrhal mucus in his throat."

"He also complained of headaches and coughed continually throughout some of the forenoons. His sleep became impaired and he had been forced to get out of bed in order to breathe comfortably. These choking sensations troubled him some during the day time, too."

"I read about Tania, and I just determined he should try it at my expense. I bought the medicine and asked him to take it. At first, he was a bit skeptical, as he had failed to obtain relief through other medicines he had taken. I persuaded him to try Tania, though, and he is now very glad that he took my advice."

"The accumulations in his throat have disappeared, his appetite for breakfast has improved, and he is generally so much better. He said the other day that he is feeling like a new man, and I am so glad that the medicine has helped him. I believe that in a very short time, if he continues to take Tania his catarrh will be permanently cured. I gladly recommend this wonderful remedy on his behalf."

Tania, the Master Medicine that helped Commissioner Wisser and thousands of others, is sold here by The Connelville Drug Co., where it can now be had. Tania can also be secured at D. C. Egan's Drug Store, Dunbar, Pa.—Adv.
